CONTRACT OF EMPLOYMENT

This contract is between Fernbrook Analytics Ltd, company number 11234567, of 9 Tannery Yard, Manchester M4 6DG (the Company), and Daniel Okafor (you). It sets out the main terms of your employment and, together with the Staff Handbook, forms your written statement of employment particulars.

1. Job title and duties. 1.1 You are employed as a Senior Data Engineer in the Platform team, reporting to the Head of Data Platform. 1.2 Your main duties are described in your job description, but you may be asked to carry out other reasonable duties that match your skills. The Company may update your job description after discussing it with you.

2. Start date and continuous employment. 2.1 Your employment starts on 5 January 2026. No previous employment counts towards your period of continuous employment. 2.2 Your employment is permanent, subject to the probation period in clause 7.

3. Place of work and hybrid working. 3.1 Your normal place of work is the Company’s office at 9 Tannery Yard, Manchester. 3.2 The Company operates a hybrid working policy. You are expected to work from the office at least two days a week, normally Tuesday and Thursday, and may work from home on the other days if your manager agrees and your home has a suitable workspace and a secure internet connection. 3.3 The Company may change the office days for a team with at least one month’s notice. 3.4 You will not be required to work outside the United Kingdom for more than one month at a time.

4. Equipment. 4.1 The Company will provide a laptop, a monitor and any software you need for your job. 4.2 You may claim up to 250 pounds once for office furniture for working from home, with receipts. 4.3 Company equipment must be returned on your last day of employment.

PAY AND BENEFITS

5. Salary. 5.1 Your salary is 68,500 pounds a year, paid in twelve equal instalments by bank transfer on the 28th day of each month, or on the last working day before it if the 28th is not a working day. 5.2 Your salary is reviewed each April, with any change taking effect from 1 April. A review does not mean your salary will increase. 5.3 The Company may deduct from your pay any money you owe it, including overpaid salary, unreturned equipment and any holiday taken in excess of your entitlement when you leave.

5.4 You are not entitled to paid overtime. Your salary takes account of the occasional need to work beyond your normal hours. 5.5 You are eligible for the Company's discretionary annual bonus scheme. Any bonus is worth up to ten per cent of your salary, depends on the Company's results and your own performance, and is paid in June. You must be employed and not under notice on the payment date to receive a bonus.

6. Expenses. 6.1 The Company will repay reasonable expenses you incur while carrying out your duties, in line with the expenses policy. 6.2 Claims must be submitted through the expenses system with receipts within 60 days of the expense being incurred. Claims submitted later may not be paid. 6.3 Travel between your home and your normal place of work is not a business expense.

6.4 Pension. The Company will enrol you in its workplace pension scheme with Harrow Life in line with automatic enrolment law. The Company contributes 5 per cent of your basic salary and you contribute 4 per cent, by salary sacrifice unless you choose otherwise. You may opt out of the scheme within one month of being enrolled. 6.5 Other benefits. After probation you are eligible for private medical insurance for yourself, life assurance worth four times your salary, and the cycle to work scheme. These benefits are provided under the rules of each scheme, which may change.

HOURS, PROBATION AND NOTICE

7. Probation. 7.1 The first six months of your employment are a probation period. During probation your manager will meet you at least monthly to review your progress. 7.2 The Company may extend probation by up to three months if it needs more time to assess you, and will tell you in writing before the original period ends. 7.3 During probation either you or the Company may end your employment by giving one week’s notice in writing.

8. Hours of work. 8.1 Your normal working hours are 37.5 hours a week, Monday to Friday, with an unpaid lunch break of one hour each day. 8.2 You may choose your start and finish times, as long as you are available during the core hours of 10am to 4pm and work your full hours each week. 8.3 You agree that the 48 hour average weekly limit in the Working Time Regulations does not apply to you. You may withdraw this agreement by giving three months’ written notice.

9. Notice after probation. 9.1 After you complete probation, you must give the Company four weeks’ written notice to end your employment. 9.2 After probation, the Company must give you at least four weeks’ written notice to end your employment. Once you have five years of continuous employment, the notice the Company must give you increases by one week for each further complete year of employment, up to a maximum of twelve weeks. 9.3 Nothing in this clause stops the Company from ending your employment without notice for gross misconduct.

9.4 The Company may decide to pay you basic salary in place of all or part of your notice period. 9.5 During all or part of your notice period the Company may put you on garden leave. While on garden leave you remain employed and paid, but you must not attend work or contact clients or colleagues about work unless the Company asks you to, and you must not start work for anyone else. 9.6 On your last day you must return all Company property, documents and data, and delete any Company information held on your own devices.

HOLIDAYS

10. Holiday year and entitlement. 10.1 The holiday year runs from 1 January to 31 December. 10.2 You are entitled to 25 days of paid holiday in each holiday year, in addition to the eight usual bank holidays in England. If you work part-time, your entitlement is reduced in proportion. 10.3 After three complete years of employment, your holiday entitlement increases to 27 days, and after five complete years to 28 days. 10.4 In the holiday year in which your employment starts or ends, your entitlement is worked out in proportion to the part of the year you are employed, rounded up to the nearest half day.

11. Booking holiday. 11.1 You must book holiday through the HR system and have it approved by your manager before making any travel arrangements. 11.2 You must give at least twice as much notice as the length of the holiday you want to take, and at least two weeks' notice for any holiday of more than five days. 11.3 You may not take more than ten working days in a row without the approval of your director. 11.4 The Company closes between Christmas and New Year and you must keep three days of your entitlement for that period.

12. Carrying holiday over. 12.1 You should take all of your holiday in the holiday year in which it is earned. 12.2 You may carry over up to five days of unused holiday into the next holiday year, but you must take them by 31 March of that year or they will be lost. 12.3 If you could not take holiday because of sickness or family leave, you may carry over the holiday you were unable to take, and must use it within eighteen months of the end of the year in which it was earned.

12.4 Holiday on leaving. When your employment ends you will be paid for any holiday you have earned in that year but not taken. If you have taken more holiday than you earned, the Company will deduct the excess from your final pay. Apart from this, the Company does not pay in place of untaken holiday. 12.5 The Company may ask you to take any remaining holiday during your notice period.

SICKNESS AND FAMILY LEAVE

13. Reporting sickness. 13.1 If you are unable to work because of sickness or injury, you must tell your manager by phone or video call as soon as possible, and no later than 9.30am on your first day of absence. A message or email is only acceptable if you cannot call. 13.2 You must keep your manager informed of how you are and when you expect to return. 13.3 For absences of up to seven calendar days you must complete a self-certification form on the HR system on the day you return to work. For absences of more than seven calendar days you must provide a fit note from your doctor covering the whole of the absence.

14. Sick pay. 14.1 You are entitled to Statutory Sick Pay if you meet the conditions for it. 14.2 Once you have completed probation, the Company will also pay your full basic salary, including any Statutory Sick Pay, for up to four weeks of sickness absence in any rolling period of twelve months, and half of your basic salary for a further four weeks. 14.3 Company sick pay is discretionary and may be withheld if you do not follow the reporting rules or if the absence results from a sport or activity done professionally.

14.4 The Company may ask you to see an occupational health adviser or a doctor it nominates, at its expense, and you agree to the report being shared with the Company. 14.5 If you are often absent or absent for a long time, the Company will meet you to discuss support and any reasonable adjustments before taking any other step.

15. Family leave. 15.1 You are entitled to maternity, paternity, adoption, shared parental and parental bereavement leave and pay as set out in the law and in the family leave policy in the Staff Handbook, which in some cases is more generous than the law. 15.2 You may take reasonable unpaid time off to deal with an emergency involving a dependant. 15.3 You may also take up to five days of paid carer’s leave a year after probation.

CONFIDENTIALITY, RESTRICTIONS AND GENERAL TERMS

16. Confidentiality. 16.1 You must not use or disclose any confidential information about the Company, its clients or its suppliers, either during your employment or after it ends, except in the proper course of your duties or where the law requires it. 16.2 Confidential information includes client data, source code, pricing, business plans and information about colleagues. 16.3 Nothing in this contract stops you from making a protected disclosure about wrongdoing.

17. Intellectual property. All work you create in the course of your employment, including software, models, documents and inventions, belongs to the Company. You agree to sign any documents needed to confirm this, at the Company’s expense.

18. Restrictions after you leave. 18.1 For six months after your employment ends, you must not try to persuade any client you worked with in the last twelve months of your employment to move their business away from the Company. 18.2 For the same period you must not try to persuade any employee you worked with to leave the Company. 18.3 Any time you spend on garden leave is deducted from these periods.

19. Other work. You must not take on any other paid work while employed by the Company without your manager’s written agreement, which will not be refused unreasonably if the work does not compete with the Company or affect your performance.

20. Disciplinary and grievance. The disciplinary and grievance procedures are in the Staff Handbook and do not form part of this contract. If you have a grievance, you should raise it with your manager first, or with HR if it concerns your manager.

21. Data protection and law. The Company processes your personal data in line with its employee privacy notice. This contract is governed by the law of England and Wales. Signed for Fernbrook Analytics Ltd by Hannah Price, Chief Operating Officer, and by Daniel Okafor, on 1 December 2025.
